ANNOUNCEMENTS

Many things have changed due to COVID-19. Hopefully everyone here today has received the letter that explains our new guidelines. The letter and guidelines are also posted on all doors. These guidelines will change as needed and we will do our best to keep everyone informed of the changes. Our layleader will go over some of our guidelines during the announcements this morning.

Thanks to all who have sent in offerings to allow us to continue to keep our church going. Thanks to all who have given their time and talents to help the church. Even though we have not been here, bills still needed paid and other things need done for the church to continue to run smoothly and we genuinely appreciate everything you do.

Hopefully you have noticed changes inside and outside our sanctuary. Thanks goes out to Kevin North and his company, 3-Clovers Construction, for their wonderful and caring repairs and painting. There is still a little more to do before it is complete. We will be sharing before and after pictures once the job is complete. Also, thanks to the congregation for the approval of the monies needed to fund this much needed project.

Happy Birthday to Ian Helmick and Joshua Glass.

Pentecost's Divine Disorder

Don't contain the daring Spirit of God, embrace it

Samuel Son – Presbyterians Today

After the 50 days of Easter, followed by the Ascension of our Lord, comes the celebration of Pentecost. It's a day on the liturgical calendar that is often played out in churches by a sea of red in the pews, as churchgoers are invited to wear something red, symbolizing the "divided tongues, as of fire" in Acts 2:3 that appeared over the heads of Jesus' followers who waited prayerfully for the gift of the Holy Spirit. Pentecost is a day that marks the surprising and explosive start of the church. The day is not for us to just sing "Happy Birthday" to the church, marveling at how long the body of Christ has been around. Rather, Pentecost is a day to remember our identity as God's beloved and return to the core values of discipleship. And so, the issue we should be wrestling with is not how to "celebrate" Pentecost Sunday. Rather, the question should be: How can every Sunday be a Pentecost Sunday, filled with the surprising – and at times chaotic ---Spirit?

The first Pentecost worship started spontaneously on a side street in Jerusalem. It wasn't sanctioned by religious officials. It was a tailgate party that became bigger than the main event itself. Devout Jews had traveled to observe Pentecost – Shavuot in Hebrew – which was the festival of the gathering of sheaves. Galilean preachers – Jesus' followers – were now preaching the Good News boldly. They preached in different languages so that all could understand. Just a few weeks earlier, Jesus' followers had locked themselves in an upper room, afraid they might share the same fate as Jesus if they even spoke his name. Pentecost reminds us that with God's Spirit, worship isn't necessarily about following the traditional worship order, and meetings aren't all about following "Robert's Rules of Order." Pentecost means that churches should learn to see disorder as a new way of doing things. Pentecost also invites us to consider how many truths have been shushed for the sake of decency. Pentecost is not merely asking us how to make that one Sunday of worship a little bit out of order. It challenges us to always be open to the reordering of the Spirit in every part of our lives.

OPENING PRAYER (Unison)

Holy God, like a rushing wind your Spirit moved upon the first disciples on the day of Pentecost, and like a purifying fire your Spirit seared their hearts and minds with the message of salvation. Send your Spirit upon your church in this time and place, stir up our courage, and rouse us for prophetic witness that we may join with them to proclaim to the world your mighty deeds of power in Jesus Christ. Together we pray as you taught: "Our Father"...

CALL TO CONFESSION

Leader: God has promised that everyone who calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved. Therefore, let us call upon the Lord, confessing our sins.

PRAYER OF CONFESSION (Unison)

God of a new creation, we confess that we have failed to trust your bountiful goodness. By the power of the Holy Spirit you brought forth the earth and its creatures in abundance. Yet, we hoard earth's resources and refuse to share your gifts. We dishonor your generosity by withholding our charity to those in need. We betray your kindness by dealing harshly with our enemies. We disregard your compassion by severely judging the sins of others. Forgive us. By the power of your Spirit renew our hearts and free us from
